

Second Treaty of Arsaria

1. The Arsarian Lands as defined by the Grand National Office's National Sovereign Territorial Directive is to be known as the Kingdom of Arsaria, and is to be an autonomous region of the Republic.
2. The Kingdom shall have the right to a Head of Government who shall inherit local executive duties, and a legislature. Both are together to form the Government of the Kingdom of Arsaria.
3. The elections for the Government of the Kingdom of Arsaria are to be undertaken by the Government of Arsaria, and the manner is left up to the constitution of its own.
4. The Legislature of the Kingdom may pass a constitution and bills. No piece of legislation may conflict with the laws of the Republic, except for the following categories, where local law is to take precedence, only within the borders of the Kingdom; Restrictions of Firearms for Civilian Populus, Local Land Management, Limitations on Civil Industrial Development. Any discrepancies between the two legislations will be resolved in the highest body of judicial authority within Rosava.
5. If there is a national vote on any of the categories covered above in the national legislature, any members of the national legislature from Arsaria are to vote in agreement with the rest of the legislature.
6. The Kingdom of Arsaria will reserve the right to form an organisation for the internal safekeeping of its own. This organisation is to be under the control of the Head of Government of the Kingdom. The organisation will retain the right to small arms for the completion of such internal safekeeping tasks. The organisation may not own light or heavy arms.
7. The Kingdom of Arsaria's Head of Government retains the right to veto any appointment to the District Court by the Supreme Court. The prosecutions for crimes within Arsaria are also to be conducted by the Solicitor General chosen by the Head of Government of the Kingdom.
8. The legislature of Arsaria may bestow titles to their Head of Government as they wish. Such titles may not include any claims of power outside of Arsaria, or on Rosavan forces within Arsaria.
9. The Defence of Arsaria will be guaranteed by the Republic of Rosava, and Arsarian Government will permit for any immediate leniencies necessary in order to provide for this defence. This leniency only applies to Gendarmerie, or any relevant successor. However, such defence may not create a mandate for a permanent troop presence without permission.
10. The Arsarian Kingdom retains the right to have a flag.
